

CLAIMS

1. A method of updating information in nonvolatile memory using a controller coupled to a host comprising:
- receiving updated information organized into sectors, a plurality of sectors forming a block;
- identifying a block within the nonvolatile memory within which the updated sector information is to be stored;
- preserving un-updated sectors of information;
- erasing the identified block; and
- writing the updated sectors and the preserved sectors of information in the erased block.

Adal
A1

001210-44502960